I. INTRODUCTION

Background

On August 21, 1996, President Bill Clinton signed into law the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996. One part of this law, Administrative Simplification, is intended to standardize electronic health care transactions, protect the privacy of patient identifiable information, and ensure the security of electronic information. HIPAA also covers the confidentiality of a person's identifiable health information via electronic media. The privacy rule encompasses medical records and other individually identifiable health information held or disclosed by health plans, health care clearinghouses, and health care providers, in any form, whether communicated electronically, on paper, or orally. The final privacy regulations take effect April 14, 2003.

HIPAA Privacy Regulations Overview

The HIPAA Privacy Regulations provide patients with significant rights to better understand and control how their health information is used and disclosed. Summarized below are the leading standards provided by the final rule.

- | | | | |
| ➤ Providers are required to provide patients with a clearly written explanation of how their medical information will be used, kept, and disclosed. | ➤ In the absence of a signed consent, providers must make a "good faith effort" to obtain written acknowledgement of receipt of the provider's Notice of Privacy Practices that describes their use of PHI. | ➤ Disclosure of patient information must be limited to the minimum necessary to comply with the request. | ➤ Patients have the right to complain to a health care provider, or to the Secretary of Health and Human Services within 180 days of the known violation. |
| ➤ Under ordinary circumstances, patients must be able to access, duplicate, and request an amendment to their medical records. Other than for treatment, payment, and health care operations, providers must make a history of disclosures available upon patient request only if an authorization has not been signed. | ➤ Authorizations are requested for non-routine disclosures of patient information with exceptions only for treatment, payment, and health care operations. | ➤ Providers must establish written policies and procedures documenting compliance with the privacy standards. | ➤ Health care providers must provide a means for patients to inquire or make complaints to the practice regarding the privacy of their medical records. |
| | ➤ Policies and procedures must include a process for disclosing protected health information that include steps to assure that business associates maintain the privacy of protected health information. | ➤ A Privacy Official must be designated with the responsibility of ensuring that employees receive sufficient awareness training and instruction on the new privacy protection procedures. | ➤ Criminal penalties for PHI privacy violations range from $50,000 and one year in prison to $250,000 and up to 10 years in prison, depending upon the severity of the disclosure. |

Application

The Maryland Health Care Commission's, "A Guide to Privacy Readiness, v2" is intended to assist most practitioners and small facilities in their privacy assessment. This second edition of "A Guide to Privacy Readiness, v2" contains significant changes to Section IV, including Department of Health and Human Services final regulatory modifications released August 14, 2002. Sample policies and procedures for small provider offices were also added.

II. Maryland Law on the Confidentiality of Medical Records

Did you know that Maryland has a privacy law...

- All medical records are considered protected information. This includes both electronic and paper records and also oral communications.
- Patient rights over their medical information include patient-provider medical records confidentiality, permitting patient access to their medical files, and allowing patients to add or alter their medical records according to those procedures established by the provider.
- Health care providers may only disclose medical records upon receipt of patient notification. Health care providers are prohibited from disclosing any patient identifiable information to a person for educational or research purposes, evaluation and management, or accreditation of a facility unless an acknowledgement not to redisclose is received.
- Any health care provider or other person(s) who knowingly and willfully violate the provisions of Maryland's Medical Records Law are guilty of a misdemeanor. If convicted, the violator is subject to a fine not exceeding $1,000 for the first offense and $5,000 for each subsequent conviction.
- Copies of medical records are permitted upon patient request.
- A health care provider may disclose medical records about a patient without authorization when seeking payment for health care services, in emergency situations, to the provider's legal counsel, coordinating benefit payments, or to a unit of state or local government for purposes of investigation. Health care providers must disclose medical records in situations pertaining to criminal investigation, or to an appropriate organ, tissue, or eye recovery agency.
- A facility director may confirm or deny the presence of an individual to a parent, guardian, next of kin, or any individual who has significant interest in the individual's status. State or local government agencies may report the status of an individual in cases of missing persons where a report has been filed.
- Information may be released without consent in circumstances of investigations or treatment in cases of suspected abuse or neglect of a child or adult and also in the licensure/certification or discipline of a health professional.
- Personal notes for mental health therapy that are kept separate from the medical record are not considered part of the medical record. Mental health information subject to disclosure includes information concerning diagnosis, treatment plans, symptoms, prognosis, or progress updates.
- A health care provider or any other person who knowingly and willfully requests or obtains a medical record under false pretenses or through deception, or knowingly and willfully discloses a medical record is subject to a fine not exceeding $50,000 or imprisonment for not more than one year or both. If the offense is committed under false pretenses, a fine not exceeding $100,000 or imprisonment for five years or both may apply. If the offense is committed with the intent to sell, transfer, or use individually identifiable health information for commercial advantage, personal gain, or malicious intent, penalties include up to a $250,000 fine or imprisonment for not more than 10 years or both.

III. Glossary of HIPAA Terms

Term	Description
Authorization	A document signed by the patient authorizing the release of specific protected health information (PHI). Authorizations must outline what information is being disclosed, the recipient of the information, expiration date, a statement of the individual's right to revoke, a statement describing potential re-disclosure of the information, and dated signature of individual or guardian. Uses & Disclosures of Protected Health Information (PHI) §164.502(a) Operational	Final privacy rules require health care providers to obtain a signed consent or use good faith efforts to obtain an individual's written acknowledgment of receipt of the Notice of Privacy Practices. The law encourages the development of a comprehensive document outlining the use of PHI for treatment, payment, and health care operations layered with a summarized version for acknowledgement purposes. The good faith effort must be made at the time of the first delivery of the Notice of Privacy Practices and acknowledgement or efforts to obtain it must be documented. ? Have you established a comprehensive Notice of Privacy Practices? Clarification: In place of consent (to be used discretionally), health care providers are asked to establish a detailed Notice of Privacy Practices explaining how PHI is handled for treatment, payment, and health care operations. In addition, when treating a mutual patient, providers are permitted to exchange information in order to obtain payment, or for operational purposes such as quality assurance. Authorizations remain a requirement for use or disclosure of PHI for other than treatment, payment, or health care operations.	<input type="checkbox"/> Yes	<input type="checkbox"/> No	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> ◆ Prepare a detailed Notice of Privacy Practices document specifically outlining the intended use of PHI for treatment, payment, and health care operations. ◆ Develop an acknowledgment document that briefly explains your Notice of Privacy Practices and request signed notice of information from individual. ◆ Document instances where patient or personal representative refused to sign the acknowledgement. <hr/> Sample Policy & Procedure Refer patients to the Notice of Privacy Practices for specific information regarding the handling of PHI and ask patient to acknowledge receipt of the information in writing.

Authorizations signed by a representative must include a description of the authority. ? Does your authorization document contain the required detail for specific disclosures of PHI? Clarification: Individuals must authorize the use or disclosure of particular PHI, such as that released for pre-employment physicals, research involving treatment, and psychotherapy notes. In cases where a Business Associate Contract is required and the relationship is formalized in an agreement, a one-year grace period is allowed to implement this requirement (April 16, 2004). V. Developing a Business Associate Contract

? Who are “Business Associates?”

Business Associates include people or entities that use or disclose protected health information to perform functions and/or assist health care providers.

Business Associates are required to adhere to the same standards as the health care provider in handling protected health information.

? Who is responsible for managing the services performed by “Business Associates?”

Health care providers are expected to make sure that privacy protections are maintained whenever subcontracting services that require sharing protected health information. Health care providers are required to investigate complaints received or other information containing substantial and credible evidence of violations by a business associate. Should a health care provider become aware of a substantial violation, they are further required to take reasonable steps to correct the breach and/or terminate the contract.

? Are there circumstances where treatment information can be shared without a business associate contract?

Yes, a business associate contract is not necessary between practitioners or facilities in the treatment of a patient.

? Is legal counsel required to develop a Business Associate Contract?

No, a business associate contract can be independently drafted and implemented. A thorough review of the language is recommended prior to executing and you may choose to solicit legal counsel to perform this task.

? What are the main elements in developing a Business Associate Contract?

- Plainly state the nature of the agreement. Stress the business associate's responsibility not to use or disclose the information provided or made available by the health care provider for any purpose other than that expressly permitted under the contract. Clarify that the rights of the information are and remain the property of the health care provider.

- Detail situations within the scope of the provided services where a health care provider or business associate would be permitted to disclose information. Examples of these types of conditions are for claims processing or administration, data analysis, utilization review, quality assurance, billing, benefit management, practice management, legal, actuarial, accounting, consulting, data aggregation, management, administrative, accreditation, or financial services.
- State circumstances where a business associate would be permitted to use or disclose information in order to perform their function, such as for management and administration or legal services. Include language stipulating the business associate's responsibility for assuring that the third party to whom the information is disclosed exercises full confidentiality and consents to no further disclosure other than stated in the contract, or as required by law. Note: Business associates are permitted to provide data aggregation services relating to the health care operations of the health care provider.
- Clearly state expectations for safeguarding the use and/or disclosure of the shared information. Some examples:
 - Administrative Safeguards -using consistent confidentiality practices when handling patient files and using discretion when transmitting patient information by phone or fax.
 - Physical Safeguards - adding manual locks to unsecured cabinets that house protected health information or storing medical files in a locked room.
 - Technical Safeguards – instituting password protection of computers in order to access electronic files containing protected health information.
- State the business associate's responsibility to grant an individual access to his/her protected health and specify the individual's right to amend their information according to regulations. Require that a log be kept in the individual's medical file of any and all amendments and/or disclosures of protected health information.
- Incorporate language to outline the termination of the contract. Specify expectations for returning or destroying the shared information and your right to immediately terminate the contract if a violation of the privacy regulations is discovered.
- Stress the dual application of the regulations to third party vendors. Clearly state that the terms of the contract apply to all parties, including subcontractors of business associates. Require that the business associate report known unauthorized uses or disclosures of the shared information under contract. Outline measures that will be taken if employees, subcontractors or agents of the business associate are found to be in violation.
- Include language to address a business associate's responsibility in the event of a federal audit by the Secretary of DHHS. DHHS audits would likely consist of the use and disclosure of personal health information received from or created by the business associate on behalf of health care provider.

For example purposes only

DEVELOPMENT TIP:

Plainly state expectations of employees having access to PHI in the performance of duties and include information relating to liabilities in handling or removing PHI from the premises, sharing or falsifying information, operating standards of your organization, and system limitations.

VII. Developing a Patient Acknowledgement Form OPTIONAL

? What is a "Patient Acknowledgement Form"?

A patient acknowledgement form can be used to pointedly ask an individual for their dated signature prior to your office using or disclosing their protected health information to carry out treatment, payment, or health care operations. It is simply an acknowledgement that the Notice of Privacy Practices has been reviewed with the individual and that they are fully aware of policy and procedures practiced by your office covering protected health information received or created that identifies or may identify that individual and pertains to their physical or mental health, the health care provided and/or payment for services.

? Can I use an existing form and just add the acknowledgement of the Notice of Privacy Practices?

YES. Like many health care providers, you may routinely ask for a patient's consent upon admission to assure their understanding of information disclosures to insurance companies (or other entities) for payment purposes. The privacy rule builds on this practice by establishing a customary routine of obtaining patient consent for uses and disclosure of protected health information about the patient in order to carry out treatment, payment, or health care operations. YOU MAY UPDATE YOUR EXISTING DOCUMENT BY INCORPORATING THE HIPAA LANGUAGE.

? What are the recommended elements for this document to be valid?

1. MAKE IT BRIEF! The purpose of this document is to make sure your patients understand how your office may use and/or disclose their protected health information to carry out treatment, payment, or health care operations. The specifics of your office procedures must already be defined in your NOTICE OF PRIVACY PRACTICES and you need only to have a patient's acknowledgement that they have received the Notice of Privacy Practices information.
2. State that this authorization is valid throughout your relationship with the patient and plainly state their choice to overturn the agreement in writing at any time.
3. Make sure the form is signed and dated by the individual.
4. Retain the form in the patient's medical file for a minimum of 6 years.

3. Expiration date or event
4. Statement of the patient’s right to revoke
